Buildings Grow Towards Completion

Chelsea Bank Soon Ready For Roof—Laying Ease Cut Stone for Backus Hospital Addition—Ready to Finish Hotel Tower on Market Street Corner—Alterations in Main Street Buildings.

On a number of local buildings, either new or in process of repair or rebuilding, noticeable progress has been made in the past week, bringing them nearer to the point where they can be turned over into their owners' hands ready for use. At the new Chelsea Savings bank building on Main street the first course of the cornice stone has been laid and also a large part of the second course. There are still three courses of granite to be laid to complete the cornice, after which Contractor Morgan Williams will get to work on the cornice roof, which has a big central skylight. When this is on, work in the interior fitting will be taken.

The foundations are finished for the Backus hospital addition and the masons are now setting the base course which is of brownstone and granite.
The granite comes from Milford and is already here, having been carted to the hospital grounds, but Contractor Williams is just receiving the brown-stone, which comes from East Longmeadow, Mass. When these base stone are in place the first floor can be laid.

CRIBSCROSS TESTIMONY IN FITCHVILLE CASE.

Witness Gives Two Versions of a Frac-as—Suits and Counter-Suits—Rue-to Surroundings Make Novel Court Scene.

The village of Fitchville was the scene of more legal business this week than that peaceful suburb has experienced for some time. Justice Miller presided over a court that was held in the hall Tuesday evening, and heard testimony in a criminal case brought on complaint of Impal Dubitski against Jacob Anezchik, charged in 2 accused with an assault in Fitch-ville mill July 9th. The chief witness for the state testified that Dubitski and Anezchik were playing and fooling like children, and that Dubitski caught Jacob by the leg and threw him to the floor, all in a sportive manner.

The hall was thronged with spectators for the trial, and heard with evident pleasure the frequent verbal clashes between counsel. The court fined Jacob $5 for his share of the fun, and the appeal of the case was set for the 14th.

This case was the result of a counter complaint by Dubitski, who had been arrested by the police on the charge of complaint against him, that case being continued until Wednesday, August 13.

At 2 p. m. before Justice Charles A.
Johnson, Attorney E. A. Burke appeared for Jacob, Attorney John D.
Hall and John H. Barnes for Dubitski.

On Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the same parties again appeared in court. This time before Justice Johnson.
In two cases, one a criminal matter, in which Jacob had accused Dubitski of assault, and the other a civil case for $100 damages brought by Jacob, who claimed he had been injured in his shoulder by Dubitski, who had thrown him to the floor in the mill, where both men were employed.

The same witnesses testified in these cases that had informed Justice Miller that the men were only fooling, and that the case was a matter of conscience among the audience when he said that Dubitski struck Jacob in the face and threw him to the floor.

On the other hand, Justice Johnson found Dubitski guilty of assault and fined him $5, and gave Jacob judgment for $15 damages in the civil suit, with costs. Dr. Home testified that Jacob complained of pain in his stomach when he called to consult him, and the doctor bandaged the patient.

At the trial the scene of the trial was picturesque.
Horses browsed near the justice, cows barked from a nearby field, and the law, hens, turkeys and geese wandered among the spectators, who enjoyed the trial as much as the law.

An amateur photographer took a snapshot of the trial. Lawyers Barnes and Hall represented Dubitski, and these two cases and Lawyer Burke appeared for Anezchik. Dubitski appeared from both decisions and furnished bonds.
